Dear Washington Scandinavian Festival:

The Washington Island Preschool, Inc. was designed to serve young children and their families in the local community of Washington Island, Wisconsin 54246. It is with deep regret that we have had to dissolve the corporation.

When dispersing our operating assets we have selected organizations who serve families in our community. It is our intent to give the money back to the community who has given so generously to the preschool. There are 3 foci:

1. Grants: The preschool would not have ever become incorporated without the United Way funding.
2. Children: "It takes a village to raise a child." Washington Island is committed to helping children.
3. Families: Every family needs to be valued and for a community to exist harmoniously.

Enclosed you will find a check for a portion of the allocation of our assets. It is our intent that this money be used exclusively for the Directors Salary; Scandinavian Fest.

Any acknowledgment of this allocation should be addressed to the Washington Island Observer so that our community is aware of the importance of your particular mission.

Dear Board Members,

The Cooperative would like to thank you for the generous donation of $500.00 to our banner project. With your help, to date we have installed a total of 25 banners at various locations around the Island and expect to install 5 or 6 more to fill in a few gaps. The project has been very well received and we hope you are pleased with what you have contributed to! As we noted in our original note, we expect to have an excellent lifespan for these banners. We plan to leave them up until just after Columbus Day this year and we will put them back up prior to Memorial Day next year.

Again, thank you for contributing to our project!

Sincerely,

Feral cat colonies could pose rabies risk, CDC says

Agency says vaccination programs not enough to stop threat to humans

Elizabeth Weise

@eweise

USA TODAY

Efforts to care for abandoned cats could mean more humans will be exposed to rabies, researchers at the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention say.

For 30 years, the main domestic animal linked to human exposure to rabies in the United States has been the cat. In the past decade, the number of feral cat colonies has exploded as animal rights groups fight to end the capturing and killing of strays.

Those two trends could be on a collision course, says Charles Rupprecht of the Global Alliance for Rabies Control, who was senior author of the controversial CDC study.

Dogs were the primary domestic carrier of rabies until the 1970s, when roundups of strays and vaccination programs eradicated canine rabies. That hasn't happened with cats.

"We didn't think it was OK to have (stray) dogs, but we think it's OK to create artificial cat colonies where they're exposed to wildlife that can transmit rabies," Rupprecht says.

Approximately 300 rabid cats are reported each year in the United States, says Jesse Blanton, a CDC epidemiologist. The CDC estimates that 16% of people in the United States who undergo rabies treatment are exposed to the deadly virus from cats. They must be treated with a series of shots.

Human deaths from rabies are rare in the United States — two or three a year — and there have been no deaths linked to cats in decades.

The issue is part of a debate over how to deal with unwanted cats and their offspring. There are 74 million owned cats in the United States, according to the American Veterinary Medical Association. Estimates on the number of feral cats vary from 60 million to 150 million.

Many cat groups want an end to euthanasia in shelters. Because most feral cats haven't been socialized to live with humans and aren't suitable for adoption, they see creating outdoor colonies where they're fed and cared for as a humane alternative.

Trapping, neutering, vaccinating and returning feral cats to the wild means they remain healthy and disease-free, and the colonies eventually die out, says Becky Robinson, co-founder of Alley Cat Allies in Bethesda, Md., which has people caring for colonies in all 50 states.

The CDC says vaccination programs are not thorough enough to end the threat. Cats have lower rabies vaccination rates than dogs; 38 states require vaccination for dogs vs. 30 for cats.

To be protected against rabies, cats need to be vaccinated once as kittens, then a year later and then at about three-year intervals, says Jane Brunt, a veterinarian and past president of the American Association of Feline Practitioners.

Capturing and recapturing feral cats two or three times during their lives to adequately vaccinate them is difficult, Rupprecht says. The study says achieving the level of coverage necessary to protect those who come into contact with the stray cats "is doubtful."

The CDC research on cats and rabies was published in the journal Zoonoses and Public Health. Zoonoses are diseases that can be transmitted from animals to humans.

Poppy -- Bingo. Correct ID. Confirming picture attached. The current area of infection is on the Southeast corner of the boat storage hanger clearing next to the mowed entrance to the Red Barn trail. I will do a bit more reading and find out if there is systematic eradication program that works. Thanks for the heads-up. -- Steve Steve ... Google Japanese knotweed [fallopia japonica] I THINK it's what you found down near the sand=dune park ... and I saw in Sturgeon Bay in the parking lot of Mandarin Garden. If so I will tell the town authorities about it so they can try to eradicate it before it spreads ... from what I've read its a REAL NASTY invasive alien species : ( !!! Poppy I just happened to be reading a BBC news article today about alien invasive species and they mentioned a "bamboo"-like weed as being VERY difficult to eradicate. RSVP

Dear Town Board and Chairman:

We would like to propose that the town seriously consider a new concession stand for the town ballpark. After serving concessions for the fireworks, it became very apparent to us how inadequate the stand is – poor lighting, poor ventilation for coolers which is causing mold to grow, cramped space for equipment storage, and no running water. Since then we have spoken to a number of fans, players, and concession stand operators who agree and would support a new stand.

It seems that the logical place for this stand is to connect it to the bathroom building where there is running water and adequate space to build. This could provide concessions for both the Little League and the main ball fields. There would also be room to have a storage area for equipment for both leagues, separate from the food preparation area, allowing the storage of concession items and equipment on location rather than having to be toted in from private homes for each event. Having water accessible would allow a more sanitary environment to be established which is imperative where food is served.

We also understand that the town has to pay the neighboring property owner a substantial sum of money each year for use of the road. Razing the current concession stand and moving the road would eliminate that expenditure that could be used to help finance the building of the new stand and razing of the old stand. A committee could be formed to get volunteers to help build the stand and raze the old one in order to save money. With the leadership of this committee, the project could go fairly quickly. In talking to several builders, an early “ballpark” cost might be around $10,000. If the board did not feel it could not fund the entire amount, perhaps a fundraising drive could be begun by the committee.

We do believe that there would be support for this project, especially if people become aware of the payment of the annual land lease and the inadequacy of the current building, as well as a logical location to build a new one where there is currently water and space. This improvement would certainly seem to fit into the town’s mission to improve/upgrade areas of public use on the Island, making the Island a better place to live and visit.

Cordially,

Lon and Carolyn Johnson

Mr. Joel Gunnlaugsson, Chairman

Members of the Washington Island Town Board

Town Office Center

Washington Island, WI 54246

Dear Joel and Members of the Board:

As many of you are already aware, I am the purchaser of the Livingston Property at Airport and Townline Roads. In that connection, I am respectfully writing to seek permission to address the Town Board on Tuesday, September 17 at your regular meeting. I would appreciate the opportunity to seek your support in connection with future plans for the development of that property.

Earlier today, my colleague, Edgar Anderson, and I met with Miriah Good and Kay Miller of Door County Planning Department in conjunction with our project. We presented Ms. Good and Ms. Miller with a brief history of the Fragrant Isle LLC lavender business on Washington Island. We also made them aware of changes taking place in the business that made it mandatory that I find and purchase a new site on which Fragrant Isle would be able to combine and consolidate its existing retail business with its need for office space, processing, storage, drying and shipping space. Ms. Good and Ms. Miller could not possibly have been more helpful to us, spending a good deal of time looking through the zoning ordinances, asking good questions, and finally recommending that we petition to carve out a portion of the property and seek to rezone it C.C., while leaving the greatest amount of the acreage in General Agriculture, so that we can continue to expand the agricultural, educational, assembly, agri-tourism dimensions of the business, at the same time not compromising the retail business potential of the Company.

Edgar Anderson and I would like to present our reasons for seeking such a zoning change by speaking to all of you, and to interested members of the Town Zoning Board, at your next regular meeting, or at a special meeting, whichever best suits your needs. Our presentation will include:

- The development of the Fragrant Isle lavender farms and business
- The need for consolidation and expansion of business facilities and growing fields
- A preliminary site plan, with explanation of the time frames involved
- Questions, answers and comments

Please let me know the next steps to proceed. Thank you. I appreciate the opportunity to work in partnership with the Town, the Board and the County to bring an expanded lavender business, additional jobs, and an enhanced tourism potential to the Island.

Cordially,

Helene Meyer

The Parks Committee

The parks committee is recommending that the town crew extend the dock at little lake and put in an observation platform at the end. I think that there won't be a problem as long as it is on stilts .

Parks Committee

Who need to be in charge of the Heritage trail?

Where did the sign come from that is in front of the community building?

Have the wells passed that we put in this spring?

The county park needs a bike rack. Is the parks committee supposed to supply on or is the county supposed to do that?

Please add to the agenda.
